U.S. to Airlift 20,000 Cubans Cost $350,000

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States organized a commercial airlift today to give free flights from Havana to Miami to more than 20,000 Cuban refugees.

Whether Prime Minister Fidel Castro would permit the mass exodus was not known immediately in Washington.

The State Department announced Friday night that the government had "arranged to defray the cost" of transportation for the more than 20,000 Cuban citizens who are cleared to come to this country. The over-all cost was estimated at around $350,000.

The plan was worked out with Pan American Airways with some special flights to start today from Miami. The full schedule of 10 flights daily, each trip bringing in a little more than 100 persons, is due to start Sunday, the State Department said.

A Pan Am spokesman in Miami said a lot would depend on the speed with which Cuban authorities process the passengers—if they do at all.

"That's a complicated business," he said. "We'll send our regular flight off at 10:30 a.m. and wait for word from Havana before sending the next one."

The refugees qualified for the airlift transportation are those who obtained U.S. visas before the United States broke off relations with Cuba last January and those who since have obtained "waivers of visas." A waiver is simply a ruling by the U.S. government that an individual may enter without a visa. Since the break in relations, no Cuban has been able to obtain a visa because there are no U.S. consuls in Cuba.

Most of the Cubans holding waivers, the State Department announcement said, fall into two groups—relatives of Cubans already living in the United States and students under 21 who wish to continue their education here.

U.S. authorities said that all citizens leaving Cuba require exit permits; no one here could say whether the pro-Communist Castro regime would allow exit permits for this operation.

The funds for U.S. underwriting of the operation come from a contingency fund of the International Cooperation Administration. While said this is the same fund from which the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare draws financing for relief of Cuban refugees already in the United States.

Space Bill Is Signed by President

WASHINGTON (AP)—Only a few hours after this country sent its second man into space, President Kennedy today signed a bill authorizing vastly expanded space projects, including a start toward sending a man to the moon.

Kennedy took note of Capt. Virgil I. Grissom's space flight as he put his signature to the bill. It authorizes the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to spend $1,784,300,000 in the year ahead. The amount was every cent Kennedy had asked.

In brief statement, Kennedy said it was significant that the bill was signed on the day America's second astronaut made his flight "before the eyes of the watching world and with all the hard it entails."

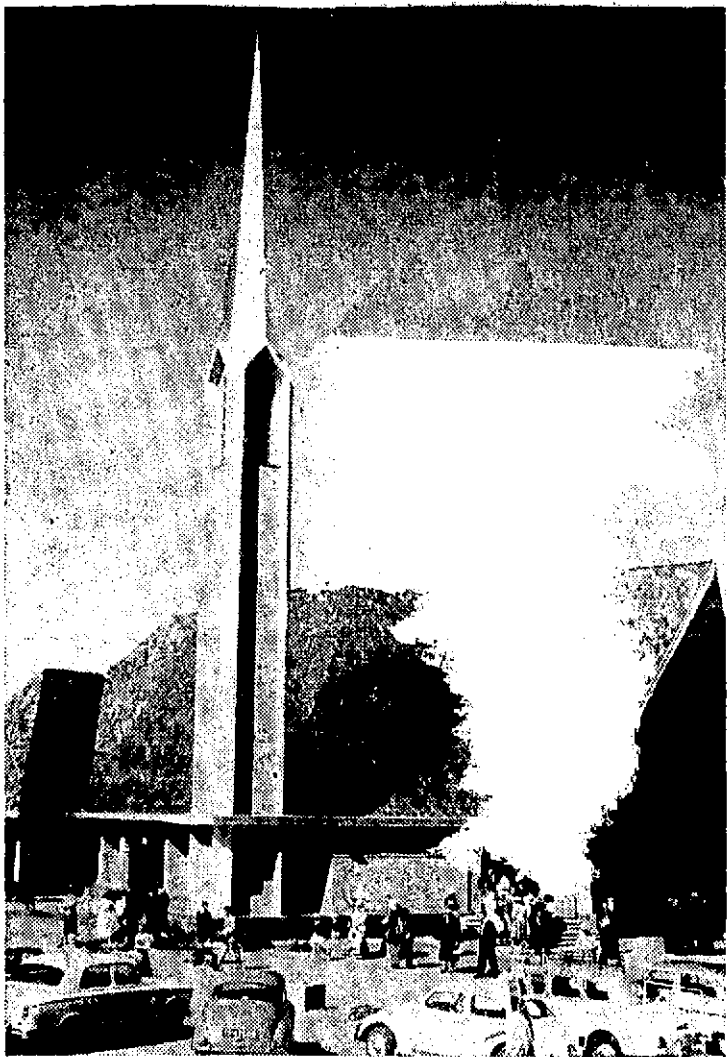

"It is also significant that once again we have demonstrated the technical excellence of this country," the President said.

"As our space program continues it will continue to be this nation's policy to use space for the advancement of all mankind and to make free release of all scientific and technological results."

The bill was passed only Thursday by the House and Senate.

Weather

Arkansas — partly cloudy and warm with scattered showers north portion and isolated afternoon thunderstorms elsewhere through Sunday. Highest Saturday 85 northwest to 95 south. Low tonight 67 to 75.

PINNACLE OF FAITH—This unusual steeple towers over a new Dutch Reformed church in Pretoria, South Africa. The church which has a 2,000 member congregation is done in modernistic design, as are most of the churches now under construction in South Africa.

Lawmakers Would Run by Position

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas congressmen apparently will run by position, instead of as a group, if a redistricting controversy results in an at-large race in 1962.

Laywers cite a 1947 law which requires every nominee for a House seat to receive a majority of the votes in a primary election. The law stipulates that when there is more than one candidate for the same office they must file by positions.

Technically, although Arkansas will have four House seats open for election in 1962, all candidates will be seeking one office — U.S. representative.

The machinery would be similar to that in school board races, where candidates file by position, situation.

Atty. Gen. Frank Holt is studying the law and will deliver a legal opinion, but some lawyers think the 1943 law covers the congressional election has been simply of a "statewide" race, as if all candidates would be competing against all others and the four with the most votes would win.

If candidates are nominated by position in the primaries, they would run by position in the general election.

The 1961 redistricting law, Act 5, ran into trouble because Jefferson, Arkansas and Lincoln counties didn't like being placed in a district with northeast Arkansas.

Legislators from the three counties battled the bill during the Legislature and later circulated petitions to get it referred to popular vote in the 1962 general election. Referral suspended effectiveness of the act and opened the threat of an at-large campaign.

Holt also is delving into the loopholes to determine whether the Legislature, in special session, can amend or repeal the redistricting act now that it has been referred. The general opinion is that the Legislature is helpless to interfere with the law now that it has been placed before the people.

Redistricting was necessary because Arkansas lost two House seats, reducing its total to four, because of a population loss reflected in the 1960 census.

"The Great Central Insurance Co., of Peoria, Ill., filed the action against a 1953 Oldsmobile in a move to get possession of the car, which allegedly was bought with stolen money. The insurance company wants the car so it can recover money from a claim it paid."

Paul Henry Jones, also known as Thomas Max Jones, told officers he used $200 from a grocery helpup to buy the car. Jones is serving a two-year prison term.

The driver, Marnie Cpl. Joel R. Owens, 20, Chicago, was on his way back to his base at Camp Pendleton, Calif. He suffered lacerations and bruises.

U.S. Output Has Made a Big Jump

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Americans are more affluent than they thought, President Kennedy says the national output has made an unexpectedly big jump.

This will come as a surprise to those Americans whose own income hasn't gone up yet, even if some of their bills have.

It may astonish those who bought a number of glamorous stocks and even blue chips at prices well above their current ones.

It will be a matter of wonderment to some 5.6 million Americans who are listed as out of work and one million more who are working part time.

And it may even surprise those merchants and retail dealers who haven't experienced a step up in sales in line with the announced increase in personal incomes.

Just what caused the big jump in national output of goods and services, known as the Gross National Product?

The President says this is now running at an annual rate of $515 billion, a jump of $14 billion from the first three months of 1961. This increase compares with a jump of $16 billion between the first and second quarters of 1959 when the economy was recovering from an earlier recession.

The GNP for all of 1960 was $504.5 billion, up 4.5 per cent from 1959.

Two sizable increases between the April-May-June period and the January-March quarter are easy to spot.

Government spending has increased.

Submarine Leaves for Patrol Duty

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—The USS Theodore Roosevelt, the nation's fourth nuclear-powered, polaris-armed submarine, left the Charleston harbor Wednesday for global patrol duty.

The 230 foot sub took aboard 16 thermonuclear warhead Polaris missiles at the arming base, then sailed under secret orders.

The other three Polaris subs now armed for action already are at sea. They are the George Washington, the Patrick Henry and the Robert E. Lee. Together with the Theodore Roosevelt, they carry 60 nuclear missiles.

Astronauts in Huddle to Plot New Ventures

By ATON BLAKESLEE

GRAND BAHAMA ISLAND (AP)—Two of the world's three space travelers—Virgil Grissom and Alan Shepard Jr.—met with their fellow American astronauts today to plot new steps along the trail that leads to the moon.

First, they want to match the feat of the Russian, Yuri Gagarin, first human to orbit the earth. Then it's on toward President Kennedy's goal of sending an American team to the moon and back in this decade.

"Gus" Grissom relaxed after a hair-raising journey in space that ended in a swim for his life in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Air Force captain, 35, had successfully followed the sub-orbital trail first flown last May 5 by Shepard, but his journey was much more dangerous.

He reported his capsule control system was sluggish and he had trouble with it as he tested it in the weightless environment of space.

Then, when his parachute lowered him into the ocean at the end of his 5,280-mile-an-hour trip, he told Shepard on his radio "you might make a note" of the fact that there was a six-by-six inch hole in the chute. Shepard was at the rocket control center.

Finally, his 118-mile high, 303-mile long flight ended in near-tragedy when the explosive bolts of his escape hatch fired prematurely and Grissom had to scramble quickly out as salty water rushed into the opening.

The wind from the whirling blades of a rescue helicopter drove him beneath the surface for a moment, but his buoyant space suit popped him back up like a cork. He seized a "horse collar" rescue device lowered by the copter and was hoisted to safety.

Meantime, efforts of another helicopter to salvage the water-filled capsule failed and the $5 million space craft with its precious instruments and its film record of the flight sank beyond hope of recovery in three-mile deep water.

Sentiments of the National Space Agency were summed up by one official who commented: "We've got only one Gus, but we've got plenty of space capsules."

Anyway, most of the desired information came back on radio telemetry and the agency said there would be no delay in the U.S. space program as a result of the mishap.

President Kennedy watched Grissom's perilous flight on television and telephoned the space man to express his "great pleasure and satisfaction." Then he signed a bill pumping $1.7 billion into the all-out American drive to reach the moon before a "cosmonaut" plants the Russian flag there.

Grissom himself saw a television film showing of his flight after arrival here. He spent a relaxed evening, looked in briefly on a celebration in his honor, then went to bed about 9 p.m.

Figure Facts
on Friday's Space Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Facts and figures on today's second U.S. man-in-space shot (May 5 shot figures in parentheses):

Astronaut—Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom, 35, Air Force captain and hero of the Korean War. (Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr., 37.) Spacecraft—Mercury capsule weighing 4,040 pounds and named by astronauts the "Liberty Bell 7." (4,040 pounds, named Freedom 7.)

Time of launch—7:20 a.m. (EST), (9:34 a.m., May 5) Altitude of flight—115 miles. (116 miles)

Distance—303 miles. (302 miles) Time of flight—16 minutes. (15 minutes)

Top speed of spacecraft—5,310 miles an hour. (5,100 m.p.h.) Period of weightlessness—5 minutes (Approximate). (Same)

Booster rocket—Army Redstone with 78,000 pounds of thrust. (Same)

Recovery—By helicopter from aircraft carrier, USS Randolph. (USS Champlain)

Destination of astronaut—Hospital at Grand Bahama Island for extensive examinations, then returns to Cape Canaveral in about 98 hours. (Same, except Shepard went to Washington for a hero's welcome.)

Williams Home, Hits Trouble

LONDON (AP) — G. Mervyn Williams arrived by plane from New York today and ran into travel trouble.

Williams, U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs, had planned to take a British Overseas Airways Corp. plane for Lagos, Nigeria, tonight. But all BOAC planes at London Airport are grounded by a maintenance strike now in its fifth day.

Airport officials said Williams probably would have to charter a plane.

Williams is making his second familiarization tour of Africa.

Rusk Calls Meeting of Ministers

By JOH M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk called in the ambassadors of Britain, France and Germany today to open urgent galloping conversations on proposals by the Kennedy administration for military preparations to meet expected Soviet pressures against West Berlin.

The United States, it is understood late Wednesday, is building up conventional NATO military strength in Europe by the addition of several divisions of force. This would mean, some officials indicate, an increase to the long-planned goal of 30 divisions from the present strength of 22 divisions.

The immediate purpose of the conference with Rusk was to give the ambassadors detailed reports on decisions on U.S. policy made by President Kennedy at a National Security Council meeting late Wednesday.

Saturday Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other high defense officials will fly to Europe for conferences with Allied leaders in Paris and London.

Early next week, probably on Monday, the permanent council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at Paris will get a report on U.S. plans and proposals from U.S. Ambassador Thomas F. Blanton, who is also flying to Paris this weekend. He is American representative on the NATO Council.

Next Thursday Assistant Secretary of State Poy D. Kohler will take a task force to Paris to meet with British, French and West German planners and make preparations for a Western foreign ministers conference in the French capital beginning Aug. 5.

President Kennedy's plans are understood to call for an increase in over-all U.S. military strength with a prospect that one or more American divisions will be dispatched to Europe later this year. Kennedy is known to believe, however, that total American strength must be raised to a point where it will be capable of meeting Communist challenges not only in Europe but in other parts of the world. His plans are expected to be disclosed in some detail in his report to the nation next Tuesday and a message to Congress next Wednesday.

1,800 in State to Take Exams

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — About 1,800 prospective Arkansas draftees will be called for Army physicals in August in an attempt to increase the state's pool of available men from 500 to 1,500.

This report came on Thursday from Col. Fred M. Croom, Arkansas Selective Service director, who said the normal number to be called for examinations in any one month is 400.

Croom said the draft quota is not being raised—only the pool of men examined and found acceptable for military service.

Croom today announced an August induction quota for Arkansas of 84 men, his compares to 69 in July call of 63 and a quota of 69 last August.

Killed in the mishap were Nolen Lemmons, 31, Little Rock and his children, one-year-old Peggy Ann, Gregory, 2 and Harvey B. Lemmons, 3, and his wife, Doris, 30, and the couple's other two children, Rita, 4 and Howard, 10, were taken to a hospital in Kirkwood in critical condition.

"Troopers said a car driven by Jackie Dean Neth, 23, of Fayetteville, Mo., a Coast Guardsman stationed in St. Louis, collided with Lemmons' auto. Neth and a passenger, John Collier, 25, of Lemay, were taken to a hospital in Potosi.

Authorities said the Lemmons family apparently was enroute to Little Rock after visiting Mrs. Lemmons' parents at Danville, Ill.

Fayetteville to Get Back Acreage

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to give Fayetteville, Ark., 10 acres of federal land for park purposes, has cleared the Senate and now is in the House.

The Senate Thursday stamped approval on the bill by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., to give the city part of 82 acres donated by the city to the government in 1932 for a veterans hospital, he 19 acres has been declared surplus to hospital needs.

Fulbright's bill specifies that the park's recreational uses will not interfere with the care of patients at the hospital.

Retired Federal Judge Harry J. Lemley Continues to Build His Indian Collection

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Many in our area and elsewhere in our country remember the Archeological Museum of Judge Harry J. Lemley, for it was the largest private museum devoted exclusively to Indian archeology in the United States.

More recently Judge Lemley, who held court in every federal courthouse in the state before his retirement, became nationally known for his ruling on a red hot segregation issue.

Now, the Judge has combined his interests in Indians and the Deep South, and at his home in the southern part of our city one can find one of the best collections of letters and other personal data connected with the War Between the States and the part Indians played in the fight for the South.

Oh, yes, Indians played an important part in the conflict especially in the area west of the Mississippi River. One man, Gen. Stand Watie, became the only Indian General officer in the Confederate army. He was 34 Cherokee with a full-blood Cherokee father and a half-blood mother and he was born in Home, Ga. His Indian name, Taketankar, meant "to stand firm, immovable," an excellent title for a military man.

John Ross was another Indian with an important role in that war. He was principal chief of the Cherokee Nation, but he did his utmost to remain neutral in the conflict, whereas Watie definitely sided with the South and eventually Ross joined his Cherokees with the Rebel forces.

Brig. Gen. Albert Pike, one of the most distinguished men in Arkansas history, led an Indian regiment at the battle of Pea Ridge. When the Indian wife of John Ross died, she was buried on Pike's cemetery lot in Little Rock.

The battle at Pea Ridge, Ark., was the largest Civil War battle-ground west of the Mississippi River, and the story of it was featured in the Saturday Evening Post for Jan. 14, 1961. The state of Arkansas bought the land for $500,000 and presented it to the nation, Indians of tribes which fought for the Confederate States participated in the erection of a monument and the dedication of the Pea Ridge National Park.

According to Judge Lemley, "The contribution of the Confederate Indians to the protection of the western flank of the Trans-Mississippi Department and the northern boundary of Texas has not been well publicized and, hence, has been rarely appreciated."

The Western foreign ministers' talks, beginning Aug. 5, will be concerned both with what the Allies call "contingency planning" and with diplomatic measures looking toward negotiations, officials said.

By "contingency planning" the Western governments mean the plans they are now formulating to deal with any direct challenge to their Berlin rights which may be posed by the Soviet Union and Communist East Germany. In the interest of allied unity when the showdown comes they are trying to decide in advance, for example, how they will react if the Communists turn over control of the Berlin supply lines to officials of East Germany or if the East Germans demand some kind of recognition from the Western powers under threat of cutting the supply lines.

Khrushchev has threatened to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany by the end of this year and claims that this act would establish East German sovereignty over Berlin and the access routes. The Western powers do not recognize the East German regime and insist that their Berlin rights cannot be abrogated or modified by any action of the Soviets or East Germans in the absence of West agreement.

But the Engineers Thursday rejected the plan, saying the drawdown would waste enough water to produce $1 million in electrical power and would "place a cloud over the availability of electrical power from Norfolk in the future."

Also, the Engineers said, the drawdown would adversely affect recreation.

4 in Arkansas
Family Killed

PEVELEY, Mo. (AP) — Four members of a vacationing Little Rock, Ark., family were killed and three others critically injured Thursday night in the head-on collision of two autos just north of Pevely on Highway 61. Two men in the second car were seriously hurt.

Killed in the mishap were Nolen Lemmons, 31, Little Rock and his children, one-year-old Peggy Ann, Gregory, 2 and Harvey B. Lemmons, 3, and his wife, Doris, 30, and the couple's other two children, Rita, 4 and Howard, 10, were taken to a hospital in Kirkwood in critical condition.

"Troopers said a car driven by Jackie Dean Neth, 23, of Fayetteville, Mo., a Coast Guardsman stationed in St. Louis, collided with Lemmons' auto. Neth and a passenger, John Collier, 25, of Lemay, were taken to a hospital in Potosi.

Authorities said the Lemmons family apparently was enroute to Little Rock after visiting Mrs. Lemmons' parents at Danville, Ill.

Lake Project Is Rejected

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Army Engineers have rejected a Game and Fish Commission proposal to lower the level of Lake Norfolk 52 feet for a fish improvement program.

The commission wanted to lower the water level to plant vegetation for food, restock with 1,500,000 game fish and concentrate rough fish for commercial harvesting.

But the Engineers Thursday rejected the plan, saying the drawdown would waste enough water to produce $1 million in electrical power and would "place a cloud over the availability of electrical power from Norfolk in the future."

Also, the Engineers said, the drawdown would adversely affect recreation.

Fear Russia to Move Families to E. Germany

By CARL HARTMAN

BERLIN (AP) — Apprehension mounted in West Germany today that the steady flow of refugees into West Berlin might prompt the East German Communist regime to make up its population loss by importing immigrants from the Soviet bloc.

Ernst Lemmer, minister for all-German affairs, told newsmen in Bonn this possibility is causing "serious uneasiness" because it could threaten the Germanic character of East Germany's population.

A mass immigration from the east could lead West German hopes for eventual reunification of the two Germany's through free elections.

Lemmer said that for this reason West Germany will continue to urge the remaining 17 million East Germans not to flee, but he predicted the present rate of 1,000 refugees a day will continue.

He denied East German charges that West Germany lures refugees for propaganda purposes even though nearly 2.5 million refugees slipped across the border in past years.

Refugees continued to pour into West Berlin.

There were reports Communists pulled thousands off trains heading into the city, but other sources said the difficulties were no greater than usual.

Many of the refugees said the exodus has increased because of general fear the Berlin crisis might close the escape route.

A total of 4,662 refugees fled from East Germany last week, the West German Refugee Ministry said.

Woman Killed at Texarkana

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Mrs. Wiley M. Pafford, wife of a prominent Texarkana businessman, was killed Thursday when her car and a Cotton Belt freight train collided at a crossing here. The engineers said he thought the car was going to stop.

Charges State Crippled by Politicians

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Ouachita County Rep. David H. Pryor said Thursday night that Arkansas state government is crippled by selfish politicians and only a new state constitution can right the situation.

Pryor, 26, from Camden, said political chicanery begins with political intermarriages in the state's courthouses, these are sanctioned, he said, by a silent, apathetic and inactive public.

He recited off a list of recent courthouse crimes, then laid heavy blame on prosecuting attorneys.

"The majority of the legislature," he added, "especially those who have been there longest, don't want a chance of any kind because it is to their advantage to have conditions in a state of confusion."

His speech to the Little Rock Junior Chamber of Commerce was one of a series of reform campaign stops he has made since the end of the 1961 legislature. Joining him the campaign is Independence County Rep. Virgil J. Butler.

He said not even grand juries can be depended upon. He told of one county where citizens asked the circuit judge to summon a grand jury to investigate the county judge's office. The chairman of the grand jury turned out to be the county judge's campaign manager, Pryor said.

Pryor said the number of counties should be regraded to about 25, jury selection taken out of the hands of the courthouse politicians, the quorum court system revised and the governor's term limited.

Folks Won't Admit They're Average

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—"Why is it people don't want to admit they're average?" wonders nurse Luella Hennessey. "Why aren't they happy to be ordinary?"

"Happiness is laughter and being everyday and down-to-earth. Now you take this ordinary family, the Kennedys— and without waiting for the inevitable chuckling to subside, she's off on a subject close to her heart.

"The Kennedys are an example of how an ordinary family could be brought up—even without the money. The potential was there, but the Kennedy children have reached the heights they have because of their early home life. The President's great qualities stem directly from his character-building upbringing. It could serve as a guide for child-rearing today."

If anyone knows about the Kennedy's family life it's Luella Hennessey, a RN nurse. She works in a Boston hospital, she soothed 13-year-old Pat Kennedy through an emergency appendectomy. She spent the summer at Hyannis Port and later accompanied the Kennedys to London for two years while the father, Joseph P. Kennedy, was U.S. ambassador.

Although she returned to her hometown of Walpole, Mass., to take charge of the local office of the Visiting Nurse Association, she has never been far from the Kennedy life. At the drop of a safety pin she flies off around the country to take care of the President's wife and sisters and sisters-in-law when they're having babies. Of 19 births so far, she's missed only one—and that was because of a virus.

Miss Hennessey won't take pay for her Kennedy work.

"Friendship is more important than a few dollars," she says. Over the years the Kennedys have laden her with gifts.

Difficult to Understand Senator's Aim

THE DRUG INDUSTRY
By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

It is difficult to quite understand what Senator Kefauver is getting at in his investigation of the drug industry. If it is prices that he seeks to regulate, then why not regulate all prices of all goods. If he objects to labels and trade names, he makes a mistake because sensible folks not only demand original labels when they buy a medicine but get to know it by name of the bottle. The day when the doctor scrawls in Latin so that no one can read what he says, not even the pharmacist, is over. We want to know what is it that goes into us. Also there is the advantage of not taking the wrong medicine, the killer instead of the healer.

Senator Kefauver, in a previous investigation, gave the impression that he was bringing the underworld to the surface. It was exciting to watch Frank Costello testify before a television camera. When that investigation was all over, the underworld was still in business, as potent as ever, pushing heroin as actively as possible; organized vice continued to compete with private immoral persons; graft in public office became increasingly scientific. Precisely what Senator Kefauver accomplished by his crime investigation is not clear. He dropped the whole business.

Now since December 1959, he has been going after the legitimate drug business. He does not claim that any of these companies are engaged in illegal practices. No one is sent to prison as a result of this investigation. Nothing is being done to stop manufacturers from spending millions of dollars for research. It is therefore difficult to discover precisely what the Senator seeks to accomplish.

I have gone through the material diligently, seeking to discover why I have to take expensive pills when I feel so good and can do twice as much work as I used to do. The Senatorial committee's reports do not help me at all. In fact, I find much of their information to be baby-stuff, uninformative and not very helpful. Of course, drugs are expensive; so are tombstones.

Recently when my secretary was dying, all sorts of isotopes were used and I presumed that they cost a lot of money. The total bill was enormous. But if one of the isotopes could have saved her life, it would have been cheap at any price.

Nowhere is so much done for the sick as in this country and it is done mostly by private pharmaceutical companies that spend their money on research and then on promoting the drug. Much of this expenditure may be wasted because the research does not prove out. However, one success may save thousands of human lives and how much is a life worth?

Furthermore there is danger in what Senator Kefauver is doing. Patients and their families lose confidence in particular drugs that get front page attention because they are played up at a committee hearing. I know that nobody several years ago survived the series of illnesses that I had, but I have survived and am more active than ever. I am amused by friends who come up to me to say: "How wonderful you look, but do you feel as well as you look?" Sure, and I am doing more work.

And if someone tells me that the bag of medicines I carry about with me are expensive, I must laugh, particularly when I read circulars advertising graves. I would rather pay for a medicine than a grave any day. So what is the complaint?

Apparently Senator Kefauver says that the manufacturer charges too much. Much of the testimony that I have read has to do with faulty arithmetic. This is quite natural and reminds me when I was young in Shanghai. Some of us were interested in making an extra dollar out of China's share of what was known as reparation dyes; very enthusiastic but not sound businessmen. We added a 10 per cent profit to the cost and lost lots of money. We had, of course, failed to include interest on the money, exchange from one currency to another, shipping, insurance and all sorts of other charges. We subsequently calculated that a 200 per cent mark-up would have brought us a slight profit. It is just simple arithmetic.

It's My Readers' Turn!

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

I welcome letters from readers who speak up. The recent letter from an Army civilian wife who protested the long separation from her husband continues to draw fire. Now comes one from the wife of a commercial fisherman.

Dear Helen: I've just read the letter from "Disgraced Navy Wife," also that written by an Army civilian wife who signed herself "Nervous Wreck." Talk about women who can't take it! What's happened to our Spartan spirit? I am married to a commercial fisherman. His work requires him to be on the water most of the time. I hate being alone, especially at night, but why gripe? I love my husband and want him to be happy so I stay at home, where I belong, and wait patiently for his return. We have two children and are very, very happy. The great panacea for loneliness is work. I keep busy!

Dear Fisherman's Wife: There is no therapy like work, as most of us have learned from experience. Wasn't it Vergil who said, "Hard work conquers all things."

Here is a message for the "Disgraced Mother" who, unable to forgive her wayward daughter, sought vainly for peace of mind. "Dear Disgraced Mother: If there is one book outside the Bible which will help you, it is "The Miracle of Mind Power" by Dan Custer. Other books tell you what to do, this one tells you how. — Mrs. Hall, Campbell, California."

Dear Helen: I have been reading the Dorothy Dix column every evening for 20 years after coming home from work. This is the most peaceful time in my busy life. Recently, you printed a letter from a young girl who wanted to write. It was just such a letter as I might have written when a girl, I, to, had difficulty at home, being the storm center of the whole sordid situation. I thought I could resolve my own problems, but learned the hard way, being too emotionally involved to arrive at a sensible solution. How I wish I had written you and saved my family and myself a lot of heartaches. I shan't go into detail for I hesitate to dwell on past mistakes but this much I will say. I've been married 24 years and thought I knew my husband. Alas we cannot understand each other! I have my pride. There is this break between us. How can I break through, or tear it down? Even though past 46, I feel vibrant and young again. Just telling you all this helps. Thank God for people like you who hold out a comforting hand to those in desperate need of advice, understanding and compassion. I hope you publish all or part of this letter. It may encourage others to do what I should have done, write you! — Mrs. J.

Dear Mrs. J.: Letters like yours more than compensate for the time and effort invested in this column. I do care about the people who write me!

It is possible to break through the wall which separates you and your husband if you talk as you write. Your heart was in this letter to me. Try it. If that doesn't work then write him. Slip the letter under his plate at breakfast or mail it to his office. I suggested this to one couple on the verge of a break. It worked!

Send your problems to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available. Write for "Keystones of The Home."

U. S. Output Fighting K

created. And about $5 billion of the increase is due to a reversal in business inventory policy. In the first three months of the year businessmen were cutting back their stocks at a rate of $4 billion. In the following three months they stopped living off stocks on hand and began building up inventories again at a rate of $1 billion. This made a difference in the GNP of $5 billion.

The recovery getting under way this spring added to the national output by an increase in factory production — although some of these goods went into inventories rather than into final consumer sales.

Pay scales were rising in some industries. Work weeks were lengthened by many companies. Both added to the total of national income.

Government spending is sure to rise. And the Berlin crisis seems likely to add still more to the already increasing outlay for defense.

Most business executives are forecasting better days ahead for their own companies.

If there are any worries expressed it's over the rising federal deficit might do to monetary inflation, and what wage-price increases might do the cost of living.

Deaf School Asks $1.5 Million

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Board of Trustees of the State School for the Deaf will ask the next legislature for $1.5 million in emergency construction money. The school needs a new kitchen and dining room, a home economics room, an administration building and a home for the superintendent, Board Chairman T. A. Prewitt said.

Says Hospital a Fire Hazard

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — "The superintendent of the State Hospital warns that patients in the ancient buildings will die in a mass cremation if fire gets out of hand. Dr. Granville L. Jones said the hospital has about 12 fire alarms a year and its staff is "constantly fearful" that one of them will cause havoc. He told a Little Rock Civic Club "the hospital needed $72 million for construction and repairs."

Burns Fatal to Spa Man

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Robert Severs, 30, was fatally burned today in a fire which gutted his four-room home. Firemen said Severs ran out of the building with his clothing on fire. He died five hours later at a hospital. Survivors include his widow.

Youth Drowned at Pine Bluff

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — James Moore, 11, of the Dollarway Community, drowned in a muddy pond three miles north of here Thursday when his homemade boat sank in six feet of water. The body was recovered.

Roadblock in Quest for Little Kuwait

Editor's Note—Webb McKinley, Associated Press chief of Middle East services, flew to Baghdad, where Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem laid claim to the oil-rich sheikdom of Kuwait. Now back in Beirut, he gives an uncensored report of the dilemma facing Kassem.

By WEBB MCKINLEY
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Premier Abdel Karim Kassem of Iraq has reached a roadblock in his quest for Kuwait.

When Kassem announced on June 25 that Iraq was claiming the enormously wealthy oil sheikdom on its southern border, there were two courses before him.

First, he could send his armor across the border and take Kuwait by force in a few hours, presenting to the world an embarrassing fait accompli. Kassem has denied he ever intended to do this and most observers in Baghdad believe him.

Second, he could follow a political path and by winning the support of other Arab nations, possibly gaining his objective.

Kassem may have felt that somehow he could bring enough pressure against the British to keep them on the sidelines. But when British troops were rushed to Kuwait at the ruling sheik's request, that hope was ended.

SUSPENSE

A Short Short Story

© 1961 by NEA, Inc.

Then he applauded the audience.

LOVE AND BE LOVED

By LESTER ARNO

It was 10 minutes past the appointed time of 8:30.

The audience of 50 was beginning to grow restive. The one cougher had been joined by half a dozen others.

Suddenly James Malcomb Steele strode out from the wings and took his place at the podium in the center of the stage.

He was greeted by a wave of applause.

He acknowledged by bowing his head slightly.

Then he applauded the audience.

There was an embarrassed laughter in response.

"Don't laugh, my good friends and students," Steele began. "Applause by the speaker is the only good thing Khushchev brought over to these United States. Russian speakers applaud their audiences and it is right that they do so. If also is right that I applaud you. For you have come for learning. You have stirred yourselves from the apathy that surrounds us all and you have made a physical and mental effort to better yourselves. That is why you are here. And that is the reason I applaud you!"

Now, his applause was greeted by an even louder handclapping. Then he was cheered.

"Good! Fine! Excellent! Admire and be admired! Esteem and be esteemed! Like and be liked! Love and be loved!"

James Malcomb Steele, inspirational lecturer, author of "The Whole Wide World Is Wonderful," sprang from the stage and began shaking hands with each of his 50 students.

The lecture was drawing to a close.

"Turn to your neighbor on your left!" commanded Steele. "Shake hands with him or her. Shake hands hard. Let your grip be firm and warm and friendly. Good! Now, 'I-LIKE-YOU!'"

In unison the words roared from 50 throats.

"Again!" Steele ordered.

Once more the phrase reverberated through the hall.

"Louder!"

The audience responded.

"Good friends and students," Steele said. "You are on the threshold of a brand new way of life. You stand at the doorway of a whole new world. It is a life of wonderment. A world of warmth. For you have just put the key in the lock that opens the door to that world. It is a key called 'Love' and it is forged from the warm flames of human emotion. To paraphrase that great American, Will Rogers, I say to you, 'I have never met a human being I cannot love!' You, too, my students, will find that if you apply the principles that I am teaching you tonight, you will see a different world, know a new world, understand a happy world that is filled with warmth and love."

HEMINGWAY LOVED PURE ACTION OF ALL BOATING

By WM. TAYLOR MCKEOWN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A famous boatman has died. Ernest Hemingway.

He will not be remembered as one of the great writers of the sea, and yet his descriptions of lakes, rivers, and the ocean rank with the finest. He lived the sport as well.

Hemingway was a man of action and wrote action in short clean sentences that brought new clarity of truth to literature. The moment of truth in a bull fight, however, is different from the challenge that comes from setting out in a boat against the sea. The charge of a bull in a corral or an elephant in Africa is more immediate. Such encounters have a beginning and an end, just as a story must, and he more frequently chose them to write about.

Boating has fewer climaxes but presents continuing excitement. He once said of it: "Anyone who goes on the sea the year around in a small power boat does not seek danger. You may be absolutely sure that in a year you will have it without seeking, so you always try to avoid it all you can."

Once his writing made it possible for him to live anywhere, Hemingway chose Key West, Florida, and later the north coast of Cuba to be close to the sea. Here he could write all morning and still be off-shore by early afternoon.

"A Farewell to Arms" was partially written in Key West, and later "To Have and Have Not" told the story of boating and violence in the Keys during the Twenties.

For his own boat he chose a rugged 42-foot sportsfisherman, and named her Pilar when she was launched by Wheeler Yachts in 1933. Later he gave the same name to the toughest strongest woman he ever created—the old gypsy of "For Whom the Bell Tolls."

Aboard Pilar, Papa could space a lap board across a fighting chair and write in the cockpit. Or swing up in the flying bridge and take the helm to head off-shore for days at a time—and often did.

When monster marlin were needed for movie sequences of his stories, Pilar cruised down to Cabo Blanco, Peru, on the Pacific, and with Mrs. Hemingway he boated 1,000 pounders. During early World War II he stalked other game aboard her, ranging out from Cuba in audacious small-boat submarine patrols.

He glared at sun and water on his face finally gave him skin cancer. Instead of giving up the sport he grew his famous beard to protect his skin.

A superb sports writer, Hemingway could tell of stalking a one-pound trout or struggling with a tremendous tuna.

Here are boating passages of pure atmosphere and pleasure in short stories of Michigan, and ominous excitement along dark tropical channels of Florida's Keys. Gondolas of Venice cruise through "Across the River."

And then to prove perhaps what can be done with a simple poetic story of boats and fishermen he wrote "The Old Man and the Sea." For that came overdue Pulitzer and Nobel prizes.

He gave this great boatman, Ernest Hemingway, enduring pleasure. He in turn was able to record some of it for boatmen of his time and those to come.

physical education in San Diego schools, commented: "Mechanized living has made us softer, there's no question about it, but we're doing our best to counteract this in gyms and on playgrounds."

San Diego's schools are ahead of the proposed minimum, Smith added. Secondary schools have 55-minute daily physical education and elementary schools 20 minutes in addition to recess play.

Dr. Harold J. Bowers, assistant state superintendent of public instruction for Ohio, said: "I haven't seen the President's message, but personally I think too much time is spent on competitive sports and too little on the mass of the students."

"There is a temptation to concentrate on those who probably don't need it—the ones who make the football or basketball or other teams—and not on those who sit on the sidelines and watch."

"We have good physical education programs in our schools, but I'm inclined to think too many stress recreational, rather than physical fitness, programs." James Hazlett, superintendent of schools in Kansas City, Mo., observed: "The key word in his message is 'vigorous.' Our elementary schools have two 20-minute play periods daily, in addition to the lunch hour. Play involving god wholesome games is conducive to vigorous activity. We feel that, with allowance for weather, we come essentially within the suggested program."

What is your life? "It is a vapor that appears for a little while and then disappears," James 4:14. It doesn't take long to burn a match, or to live a life. From twenty to seventy looks like a long road, but from seventy to twenty is a mighty short road.

A match consumes itself to serve others. Every worthwhile life is like that. One either burns out or rusts out. The worth of life is not how long it is but how well it is lived. A good life has a vital glow . . . many little deeds made meaningful by a few great decisions. Decide now to attend church regularly. A match doesn't burn very long. Life is short. Eternity is much longer.
